Newsletter

November 2011

Greetings all. Scott Miller coming to you again with another phenomenal edition of the OPC newsletter.

This month the main event will be a program on

Color Management

presented by

Gerald (Jerry) McDowell

Here's the scenario. Has this ever happened? You've taken a photo that you especially like and want to print it out. You might have a photo contest in mind, or a gallery hanging, or maybe just something to show to your friends. So you download it into your computer and open it in photoshop. Then you work with it in photoshop, get it looking the way you want it, and click on print. The printer whirrs and comes to life, the paper feeds in, and soon thereafter you have a finished hard copy of your photo. And then you look at the big flower near the top left corner, scratch your head with a puzzled expression, and say "That's not the color that was on the screen."

If so then never fear, Jerry is here to show you how to fix that problem. He will be giving an educational talk on profiling monitors, printers, and cameras so all of those items are on the same page.

The November meeting will be on Monday the 28th at the usual time and location, 7:00 PM, downtown at the Museum of Science and History, 122 E. Second street. Entrance through the second street door.

And now for the results of the

OPC Member's Monthly Contest

The theme was side lighting and in first place we have OPC member Ken Hurm with his photo titled "Woodbox by window"

Woodbox by window

Ken Hurm

This makes me think of a cozy fireplace in winter, toasty warm with the smell of fresh coffee in the air. Mmmmmm.

Great job Ken!

Second place went to OPC member Willie Powell for his photo titled "Morning glow"

A good friend to wake up to Willie.
Terrific job!

And finally, in the Honorable Mention spot, OPC member Paul Morsey with his photo titled “Muncie sunset”

This reminds me of the old days of steam locomotives. In my imagination I can hear the whistle blowing and see the train steaming down the track maybe delivering paper for newsprint.

Great job Paul!

The theme for November is “Texture”. This could be rough or smooth, soft or hard, coarse or fine, or anything else that has to do with texture.
